General Cardiology Consults

The Vanderbilt Cardiology consultation service provides comprehensive inpatient cardiovascular consultations for patients hospitalized at Vanderbilt University Medical Center on non-cardiac services. This also includes the Emergency Department (ED) if the ED cardiology triage attending is not available. The service is provided daily from 7am to 5pm for patients with general cardiovascular issues recognizing that there are separate consultation services for arrhythmia, advanced heart failure, and adult congenital medicine.

The fellow will be involved in the evaluation of the patient and development of a diagnostic and treatment plan. This will require participation in daily rounds, management decisions, interpretation of diagnostic testing, prompt communication with the referring physicians, and teaching to the house staff assigned to this rotation.
